Country-based studies from urban and/or rural localities and regions in Asia, Africa and the Middle East are welcome; so too are alternative framings that allow for the study of connections, networks and pathways of mobility that go beyond the borders of nation-states.

Mobility

For the Mobile Lives Forum, mobility is understood as the process of how individuals travel across distances in order to deploy through time and space the activities that make up their lifestyles. These travel practices are embedded in socio-technical systems, produced by transport and communication industries and techniques, and by normative discourses on these practices, with considerable social, environmental and spatial impacts.
