

1. Authors

Workshop Master AIED University of Paris

Students

The team formed for this research is made up of 6 students from the "Interdisciplinary Approaches to Tomorrow's Energies" (AIED) master's degree, Energy, Ecology and Society (E2S – University of Paris), with multidisciplinary profiles (economics, law, political science, environmental sciences, etc.): Christelle Rouaud, Modou Fall, Mickaël Devienne, Antoine Mini, Maté Seress and Sophie Manasterski. The students are supervised by Arnaud Passalacqua, historian specializing in transport.

Projects with the Forum

Rationing carbon emissions for travel: a promising alternative to the carbon tax?

Arnaud Passalacqua, Workshop Master AIED University of Paris

Publications with the Forum

Rationing carbon emissions for travel: a promising alternative to the carbon tax?

Arnaud Passalacqua, Workshop Master AIED University of Paris