50 years in the global village – an examination of the modern city in the technological age

2014 marks the fifty-year anniversary of one of the 20th century’s most influential texts - Understanding Media by Marshall McLuhan not only introduced the media-as-the-message, it presented the world with the metaphor of the global village.

Half a century after the publication of this revolutionary text, The Mediated City – Los Angeles – Conference seeks to explore the multiple ways in which the city of today is experienced, perceived, represented and constructed as a ‘mediated’ phenomenon.

Narrative:

Today, we are perfectly attuned to the photo-realistic imagery of design presentations; daily experience ever present moving imagery of the commercialized urban landscape; and still watch the ‘city symphony of a new generation of filmmakers. We are familiar with the digitally laden experience of the contemporary public transport ride, and still see ‘the city’ as a site, subject and protagonist in cinematic productions from California to Mumbai. In this context, urbanists imagine the future of an interconnected ‘smart city’ an design process itself becomes mediated, as architects simulate user behavior as a form of ‘space syntax:

As McLuhan identified in 1964, today’s global village is a place of simultaneous experience; a site for overlapping material and electronic effects; a place not so much altered by the content of a medium, but rather, a space transformed by the very nature of medias themselves.

For some, this is little more than the inevitable evolution of urban space in the digital age. For others, it represents the city’s liberation from the condition of stasis. For scaremongers, it’s a nightmare scenario which the difference between the virtual and the real, the electronic and the material, the recorded and lived, becomes impossible to identify. In every case, corporeal engagement is placed at one remove from the physical world.

Themes:

The intention of this conference is bring together people from various disciplines to explore how their work, their ideas and their practices overlap and inform each other. Architects, urban designers, work, their ideas and their practices overlap and inform each other. Architects, urban designers, filmmakers, animators, theorists, academics, artists, web-designers and programmers will share their and their positions.

In this context, The Mediated City – Los Angeles – Conference will not stipulate or prescribe themes beyond its interest in openly and creatively exploring the multiple ways in which the city can be said to 'mediated'.

It welcomes theoretical examinations of the cinematic city; practical debates on the architect’s role in production; conversations on the use of apps to navigate ‘metropoli’; considerations on the simulation the urban environment; debates about the nature of the ‘virtual’ building; and discussions on the digital mapping of the world by companies like Google – and much more. It is anticipated that conversations across disciplines will evolve and emerge through the juxtaposition of multiple perspectives.

Informations pratiques:

Key dates – Los Angeles:

- 15 Feb 2014 Deadline for abstracts / initial proposals
- 01 Mar 2014 Feedback on abstracts / initial proposals
- 15 June 2014 Deadline for full papers / detailed proposals
- 15 July 2014 Feedback on full papers / detailed proposals
- 01 Sep 2014 Resubmission of full papers
- 01 Oct 2014 Conference – Los Angeles (Woodbury University)

Formats:

The Mediated City – Los Angeles – Conference revolves around the standard conference format of short paper presentations. A book publication is anticipated in collaboration with Cambridge Scholars Publishing. However, the organizers propose a range of activity formats such as those listed below and invites delegates to make their own alternative proposals:

- Conference Paper……………..– Standard 20 minute presentations
- Panel Discussions……………..– 30-60 minute debates on selected themes
- Workshop Activities……………– Time limited collaborative sessions
- Screenings / Q&As…………….– Films, videos, documentaries etc.
- Product / Book launches………– Presentations of new and alternative ideas

Delegates wishing to submit papers or make proposals for any of the above (or other) activities, at The Mediated City – Los Angeles – Conference should submit their paper abstracts or alternative format proposals using this Abstract Submission Form.
